This action is responsive to the communication filed July 28, 2006.

The application is objected to for lacking a specification and drawings, as set forth in MPEP 601.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Reddoch et al (US 6,585,115) in view of Simpson et al (US 6,745,856).

Reddoch et al teach a bulk material transport system including a tank 18 with conical sidewalls 110 and output orifice 85 in a flat bottom, see Figure 6, used in a system with a pump below the bottom of the tank, see Figure 4 for example, which is for receiving the bulk. The use of an unloading line with the pump is considered to be obvious since pumping into a line is a logical way to move bulk materials. The use of a uniform cross section in such an unloading line is considered an obvious matter of design choice in view of the well known nature of hoses. Simpson et al teach a bulk material transport system which can optionally be placed below decks on a ship, see column 4, line 61 to column 5, line 6. It would have been obvious for one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have placed the system of Reddoch et al below decks on a ship as taught by Simpson et al in view of the permissive design parameters taught therein. The particulars of the dependant claims are seen to be known, per se, and their use in the proposed combination is considered to be an obvious matter of design choice.

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 1-13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Regarding claim 1, the phrase "especially" renders the claim indefinite because it is unclear whether the limitation(s) following the phrase are part of the claimed invention. See MPEP § 2173.05(d).

Claims 5-13 are indefinite because the preamble of claims 5 and 9 recite "A tank" and "An output unit" while claim 1 is drawn to a system. The tank of claim 5 includes double recitations of the tank of claim 1.

Claims 5-13 would be allowable if rewritten to overcome the rejection(s) under 35 U.S.C. 112, 2nd paragraph, set forth in this Office action and to include all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
